Know the Math, Play Winning Poker

You don't want to be known as a math player, but you have to know math to be a player.

All graphs in this PDF were pulled from Charley Swayne's Poker Math section of PokerVT.com. Use the table of contents to locate graphs by the section name as they appear on the Poker Math section of PokerVT.com. Due to being designed for Web applications, graphs image quality is only 72 dpi. The low image resolution is not optimal for printing applications, when printed graphs may appear to be blurry and pixilated.

NOTE FOR THE MATH EXPERTS:

Some experts will disagree with the Expected Value formula used. For example, the amount you can win, that is how much is in the pot, is not adjusted by the size of your bet. I recommend a basic method as there is not enough time at the table for too many mental mathematical gymnastics. Admittedly this simplified formula is not the precise equivalent of pot odds, but it is sufficient to give the player a consistent edge.

DISCLAIMER:

Some of the models presented in this PDF are for Beginners and Intermediates. Advance players with superior postflop skills will play lower win factors regardless of position and table aggressiveness or will call, bet, raise, or re-raise more liberally regardless of opponents' position and table aggressiveness.
